"BABIES ARE STRONG AND HEALTHY"

Mrs. May C. Berley of 1849 1st Ave., New York City, is a firm believer in Father John's Medicine. She says "I have been giving my three children Father John's Medicine for the past six months and it has been successful. Since taking it they have gained in strength and health. Baby Francis, whose picture is shown, is the youngest of the three children." (Signed) Mrs. May C. Berley.
As a body builder Father John's Medicine has proven its value to millions of mothers who know that it is pure and wholesome nourishment that strengthens and builds up. It is a safe family medicine because it is guaranteed free from alcohol or dangerous drugs in any form.

ARMY POCKETS HEAVY LOSSES ON FOOD SALES
Democratic Extravagance Illustrated in Disposal of Surplus Supplies.

NO BREAK IN H. C. L.
Congressional Disclosures Show Inexcusable Delay in Selling Policy.

CANNERS ARE PROTECTED
Agreement Kept Goods Off Market When Consumer Might Have Profited.

Special Despatch to THE HERALD.
WASHINGTON, Oct. 11.—The high cost of living and the high cost of Democracy, while they may not be synonymous, are terms for conditions very closely related. This is the conclusion inevitably reached even by those who have not been close students of the record of the party now in power as it has been written for the last eight years.
Democratic extravagance in handling what has come to be the greatest business in the world, particularly as it had to do with the prosecution of a great war, has been glaring and often disastrous in its results, according to Republican leaders in Washington.

$24,000,000 in Canned Meat.
The War Department is still engaged in an extensive selling campaign of surplus army foodstuffs, which have been on hand for the most part since the signing of the armistice. The sale is going badly. The New York City dispatches to the Government, despite sacrifice prices, and the Government is being criticized for selling public property at a loss.
There is now in Government warehouses $24,000,000 worth of surplus foods or "substance," as it is called technically. Of this total $24,000,000 worth is in canned meats, a quantity equivalent to the entire pack of all the leading packing establishments in the United States.
Asked if the selling campaign of the War Department has proved effective in reducing the cost of living, the director of sales frankly said it had not succeeded in breaking the food market on a comprehensive scale, but that doubtless it has helped a great deal in isolated cases and that the advertising campaign had the further advantage of emphasizing to the housewives the need of economy.

Democratic mismanagement has been frequently alluded to by Senator Harding. In his first campaign speech in the East, delivered recently at Baltimore, the Republican nominee cited the long delay of the Administration in disposing of these surplus supplies.
"The huge unused stocks of essential materials and foodstuffs, contracted for or in the hands of the Government at the signing of the armistice," said Senator Harding, "were alternately impounded and released, after a long delay, without method or plan, and in ways that served neither the interest of the producer nor the need of the consumer."
This charge was based largely on disclosures made through the agency of a Congressional investigating committee, of which Representative W. J. Graham of Illinois was chairman, and more particularly the evidence taken by the subcommittee on the expenditures of the Quartermaster Corps of the army, of which Representative C. E. Reavis of Nebraska had charge.
At the time of the armistice the Government was buying food supplies for an army of 5,000,000 men for an average period in advance of eight months. The enlarged army was never needed owing to the sudden cessation of hostilities. The maximum enrollment was approximately 3,700,000 men. Of this number 2,252,000 men had been discharged and were definitely out of the service by May 24, 1919.

Delay in Arranging Sales.
Notwithstanding this rapid demobilization, which had proceeded at an average rate of 30,000 men a week, no move was made by the War Department to dispose of its consequent tremendous surplus of food supplies, although the withdrawal of the same from the market had caused prices to go skyward at a startling pace, causing acute distress throughout the country. It was not until nine months after the armistice that anything at all was done.
On July 11, 1919, the director of sales issued a statement, offering to sell certain meats and vegetables to municipalities. The investigating committee reported to Congress that this plan would not be effective, for the reason that most municipalities under their charters had no legal authority to purchase food products for sale. The committee proposed that the Secretary of War place the surplus on sale so that it might be purchased by the general public directly from the Government.
It was almost a year from the time that hostilities ceased in France until a real start was made in the work of getting this huge store of food supplies into the hands of the people, and even then the sale was permitted to go along so slowly and under such conditions that a large surplus still remains in the possession of the Government. If it had been sold promptly the National Treasury would have been enriched by badly needed millions and a measurable degree of relief afforded at a critical time to the suffering consumer.

Agreement With Cannerymen.
"This policy finds expression not only in the testimony given to the committee by the officers of the War Department but in documentary evidence as well. As an instance of such intention to prevent the American people from purchasing these products the Quartermaster-General's Department, through Gen. R. E. Wood, who was Quartermaster-General at that time, entered into an agreement with the cannery association that some 200,000,000 cans of vegetables would be kept off the domestic market during the 1919 season.
At a conference held some eight months after the armistice between War Department representatives and agents of the cannery association, it was decided that the food and sold to the Government the policy to be adopted in the sale of the food was discussed and it was decided to make an effort to sell some of the surplus here to the relief commission for feeding the starving people of Europe, for which Congress had a short time before appropriated $100,000,000. This proposal did not contemplate the sale of any of the great surplus stores of army food already across the Atlantic in France.

SAYS GOMPERS CAN'T SWING LABOR TO COX
John G. Cooper Asserts Youngstown Favors Harding.

Special Despatch to THE HERALD.
CHICAGO, Oct. 11.—Samuel Gompers cannot swing the labor vote of the country to Cox. That is the opinion expressed at Republican National Headquarters here to-day by a well known labor leader of Ohio—Representative John G. Cooper of Youngstown—who is completing his third term in Congress after serving many years in the cab of a steam engine as a locomotive engineer on the Pennsylvania Railroad.
"Four years ago I couldn't do anything for Hughes in Youngstown. They wouldn't listen to me. It was all Wilson. In this campaign the workers of my district are eager to hear about Harding. Of course, there are a great many of the extreme radical type and the normal Democrats who are out for Cox and are whopping it up for him. But Youngstown is more friendly to-day to Senator Harding, a great deal more friendly than it was to Hughes. This is a fair indication of the change in sentiment which I am finding among the conservative class of organized labor all over the country."

DANIELS AND BAKER TO FACE CHARGES
War Department Head Accused of Evading New Army Act.

President Wilson's administration was attacked yesterday from two angles in matters brought to the attention of the Republican National Committee. Representative Julius Kahn charged Secretary of War Baker with deliberate evasions of the Army Reorganization law, declaring it will be the subject of an investigation by the House Military Affairs Committee as soon as Congress reconvenes.
Warren Shaw Fisher, Republican nominee for Congress in the Sixteenth District, asked Secretary of the Navy Daniels for his immediate release from the Naval Reserve Force that he might be free to tell what he knows about the maladministration of the Navy Department.

"As a candidate for office, and a man pledged to the interests of my country, its people and my party," wrote Mr. Fisher, "I now deem it expedient to meet you on common ground, free and untrammelled by any military connection, to challenge the veracity of both yourself and that of your former assistant, Franklin D. Roosevelt, as to your recent campaign speeches made to cover up the maladministration of your office, which resulted in millions of dollars of loss to the American people; to prove that through your office was purchased useless and obsolete vessels, of little or no value, and to tell the true story of many other cases of inefficiency which I am prepared to charge and prove through witnesses and affidavits."
Mr. Fisher said he had received a letter of warning from Secretary Daniels not to impart any further information to a Congressional committee. Now, however, he purposes taking an open stand and despite any attempted bridling.

In addition to serving in the world war Mr. Fisher is a veteran of the Spanish war and of the Philippine insurrection.
Representative Kahn's charge, which is to be the basis of an investigation, is that the purchase of supplies for the army is still being done by the general staff, instead of by the Assistant Secretary of War upon recommendation of the bureau needing the material.
N. BRUNSWICK LIBERALS WIN.
ST. JOHN, N. B., Oct. 11.—Announcement that the Government had elected twenty-five members in the New Brunswick elections last Saturday, as against twenty-three by the Conservative Farmer and Labor opposition, was made here to-day by E. S. Carter, secretary to Premier Foster. Mr. Carter said that the vote in Kings county had been rechecked, with the result that Keith, Liberal, was shown to be ahead of Jones, Conservative, by one vote.

NOW IS THE TIME TO BUY
Lower Prices on Gardner Cars and the Reason Why

There is no business reason why, but there is a very big sentimental reason—the great American public demands it. Right or wrong they say that the high cost of living must come down. They are impatient. They won't wait for a proper adjustment from the bottom up, but insist that prices on finished articles as well as food and other farm products should be reduced in price—and that at once.

The time for action is here. The Gardner Motor Company has joined with a large number of motor car builders and made a big reduction in the selling price of their product with a view of assisting in the good work at a heavy financial loss to themselves.

In fact—we are willing to co-operate and to run our entire plant if necessary for months at a big sacrifice in an effort to try and bring order out of chaos, keep our organization intact, carry out our contracts dollar for dollar.

We have over Ten Million Dollars worth of merchandise on the way and in over thirty-three years of manufacturing experience we have never repudiated a contract or cancelled one—and we don't want to begin now if we can help it.

Losses must be borne good naturedly and at once, and let us hope that soon "business as usual" will be the slogan everywhere.

There have been no inflated prices in automobiles and it is very unjust to say that certain other companies have unfairly priced their product. I doubt that a single builder has varied very much from the other in computing costs and profits.

As for the GARDNER LIGHT FOUR now listed at our new price of $1,195.00 it will be sold by us at actual cost of production, and I believe that the same can be said of any other makers who have lately reduced their price.

So, Mr. Reader, if you have in mind buying an automobile any time soon it behooves you to get busy at once. You can feel absolutely sure that "bed rock" has been reached on the GARDNER LIGHT FOUR and no further reductions can be or will be made.

The GARDNER LIGHT FOUR is not a war product and the old price included only a very modest profit. We confidently assert that the new price is now so low, that we furnish the best 100% of motor car value on the market today.
